Celery juice pioneer Anthony William uses the MM900 by Omega Juicers. William points out that the quality of the juicer itself is key, in addition to the quality of the organic celery used, in order to maximise nutritional value. That's why William partnered with the experienced US manufacturer Omega to develop a whole slow juicer specially made for juicing celery stalks whole: the Omega Juicers MM900. William: "Omega Juicers is my favourite brand, and the MM900 is my favourite juicer ... no other juicer on the market extracts juice from celery like this one." Our own testing has confirmed that this model's juice yield is clearly superior to that of other devices in the same price range. But the Omega Juicers MM900 can do even more thanks to a Celery Cap useful for juicing wild herbs, wheat grass, barley grass, lettuce leaves, spinach, cucumbers and other chlorophyll-rich plants. The machine comes with a second adjustable end cap specially made for juicing carrots, beetroot, apples, citrus fruits and other extremely healthy fruits and vegetables.
